Subject: Endorsement Letter for Xiangrui Zhou

To Whom It May Concern,

It is with great pleasure that I write this letter of recommendation for Xiangrui Zhou, who served as a UX/UI/System Designer within our Elilab Team at the Elihome Group's Milan Office. Throughout the development of the Elilab Digital Library, Xiangrui proved herself to be a remarkably fast, highly adaptable, and technologically resourceful designer who consistently exceeded our performance benchmarks.

Xiangrui was explicitly in charge of the end-to-end user experience of the digital library interface itself. She designed the ecosystem's core navigational flow, ensuring that role-based pages for our four primary user tiers (Research Users, Developers, Leaders, and Decision Makers) synced flawlessly with one another. She meticulously mapped the library's information architecture so that interactive components and buttons flowed intuitively to the proper step of the 4-stage research lifecycle. Additionally, Xiangrui initiated the system's UI and visual organization, designing clear iconography, clean page layouts, and producing engaging tutorial videos embedded directly within the platform to streamline onboarding for our global employees.

Xiangrui is an exceptionally fast worker who thrives in dynamic, agile environments. She showed immense initiative by exploring external platforms, third-party plug-ins, and emerging tech tools that could be embedded to enhance the library's utility and interactivity. Rather than restricting herself to standard layouts, she continuously researched and brought fresh technical solutions to the table to solve complex UX problems.

In a fast-paced corporate setting where project scopes naturally shift, Xiangrui demonstrated outstanding adaptability and patience. She welcomed changing demands and feedback with a constructive, solution-oriented mindset, rapidly iterating on her layouts without ever sacrificing design quality. Her work on Elilab perfectly mirrored the award-winning UX expertise highlighted in her background, proving that she can seamlessly connect product strategy with beautiful visual design.

Xiangrui is an agile, tech-savvy, and deeply collaborative designer who brings energy and execution speed to any design team. She has my full confidence and highest recommendation for roles in UI/UX design, service design, or digital product strategy.

Kind regards,

Julienne Alexis L. Joven
